2: EXPRESSING POSSESSION

Express possession using possessive pronouns

Possession

Is the state of having, owing or controlling something.

Possessive pronouns: These are pronouns which show or indicate an ownership.

These include

- Mine
- Yours
- His
- Hers
- Ours
- Theirs

Notes: 1

When expressing possession we use an apostrophe (') for the singular nouns. It is put before (s) and for plural nouns ending with (s') put the apostrophe after (s)

Examples.

1. This is Ali's book.
2. That is mother's bag.
3. This is James' ball.
4. Those are Charles' shoes.
5. These are the teachers' books.
6. Whose bags are these?
These are the boys' bags.
7. It was a girls' school which was destroyed

Plural nouns.

- i) Add apostrophe after (s')

Examples.

These are boys' shoes.

Those are girls' trousers.

- ii) For irregular plural nouns apostrophe is put before (s)

Examples.

Men's shirts.

Women's bags.

Children's toys

- iii) For regular nouns ending with (s) we put the apostrophe after s'

Examples.

Babies' milk.

Ladies' hand bags.

Note:2

Some time possession is shown by the use of 's or with only an apostrophe (')

This is called Genitive.

Examples

- (i) Rashid`s shoes.
- (ii) Rehema`s book.
- (iii) Apiyo`s car.

In the above sentences the apostrophe and “s” has been placed in front of the nouns to show the shoes belong to Rashid the book belongs to Rehema and the car belongs to Apiyo.

Rules.

The following are simple rules on how to show possession with the use of genitives.

1. Add `s to singular nouns and names not ending with ‘s’

Example

- (i) Boy`s watch.

Salim and Maria are neighbors. They walk to school together every day. They always talk as the walk to school. On Friday, they talk about ambitions.

“I have an ambition. I want to climb Mount Kilimanjaro when I`m older,” said Maria.

“It`s really high,” said Salim. “It`s higher than Mount Meru.”

“I know,” said Maria. “It’s higher than Mount Kenya too.”

“I think Mount Kilimanjaro is the higher mountain in Africa,” said Salim.

“I’d love to walk on the snow at the top,” Maria said.

“Do you think people can see the whole of Tanzania from the top?” asked Salim.

“I don’t know. I don’t think so,” Maria replied.

“My ambition is to go to Paris. It’s a beautiful city,” said Salim.

“You could climb the Eiffel Tower!”

“Yes! That would be lovely!”

Suddenly Salim stopped. “Look, there’s a school bag,” he said.

He picked it up and they looked at the brown bag carefully.

“It looks like Regina’s school bag,” said Maria. “Let’s take it with us.”

They walked on.

“Look, there’s a shoe!” cried Maria.

“A girl’s shoe,” said Salim. “We’ll take it with us too.”

Suddenly they heard someone crying.

“Look! There’s Regina!” shouted Maria. “What’s the matter?”

“A big dog followed me. I was afraid. I think it wanted to bite me!”

“What did you do?” asked Salim.

Regina said, “I was afraid so I threw my bag at the dog. Then I threw one of my shoes. Then it left me alone and went away. But now I have no bag and no shoe. How can I go to school?”

“Don’t worry” said Maria.

“We’ve found your bag!

COMPREHENSION

A dangerous Ride

Siha lived in a village near Dar-es-salaam city. Although there was a primary school near in a home, he did not go there. His father did not like the school. He disliked it because not a single class even pupil from that school had even been selected to join secondary school. Therefore, he decided to transfer his child to a school in town when he reached class five.

However, Siha's mother was not very happy with the decision she knew her son would face a big problem with transport. Most students in the city often got to school late and returned home very late. "How can Siha study and pass in such a situation?" she wondered.

When she asked her husband about this he said she should not worry. He was going to buy a bicycle. "Will you be taking him to school on the bicycle?" she asked. "Of course I will," he answered.

For the first few months, Siha's father took him to school on the bicycle without a problem. Every day, he reached school on time and went back home early. One day during the third month, his father fell sick and there was no one to take him to school on the bicycle. Therefore, he had to take a city bus.

On the first day, he woke up very early and went to the village bus stop. He stayed there until 9 o'clock without getting a bus. Each bus that came allowed only two pupils to get in and they were not allowed to sit down. The reason was that student's fare was only fifty shillings while adults paid three hundred shillings or more per trip.

On Siha's first on travelling by bus, he got to school at around ten thirty. He was so late that the teacher on duty punished him. After school, the transport problem was worse for Siha. There were so many adults struggling to get into the buses. Even when a few students were allowed into one, Siha could not get in. he did not have the courage to push his way inside. There were so many of them and everyone wanted to get in first. He reached home at about eight twenty.

After week of the same problem, Siha decided to learn how to ride a bicycle during the weekend. He did not tell his mother what he had planned. He wanted to start riding the bicycle to school as soon as he could balance it on the road.

Siha fulfilled his aim after two weekends but he still kept it a secret. He planned to tell his mother when he was good at riding the bicycle. All that time, his father was still in hospital so he decided to ride the bicycle to school. When he got on the road to the city, cars hooted at him all the way.

To begin with, he was riding on the wrong side of the road. Secondly, he was riding fast while he was not stable. He was also crossing traffic lights when the red light was on. This was very dangerous because many cars almost knocked him down.

When Siha reached school his shirt was very wet from sweat. He was also trembling a lot because he was so scared. In the evening he asked a friend to take him. He secretly took the bicycle inside then begged his mother to transfer him back to the village school.

13: EXPRESSING PAST CONCURRENT EVENTS

A: Using when

When is normally used to express two or more events which were in progress at the same time in the past.

Examples

1. I was eating when the phone rang.
2. Jamal was riding a bicycle when we saw a lion.
3. What were you doing when the teacher entered the class?
We were reading the books when the teacher entered the class.
4. When Baraka came to see them Ali was milking the cows.

B: Using while.

While is also used to express two or more events which were in progress at the same time in the past.

Examples

1. I was reading while she was cooking.
2. I was walking while she was jogging.
3. What were you doing while Asha was coming to school?
In order to understand the use of these two words while and when it is important to study the past continuous tense.

Past continuous tense.

Past continuous tense is also known as the past progressive tense. It has the following structure.
(was/were + verb-ing form)

(was + reading)

(were + reading)

Uses of past continuous tense

Past continuous tense

1. There was an interruption while performing the action.

Example

I was eating dinner when the phone rang.

Eating – is the action which was being performed.

The phone rang – is the action that interrupted. Here two actions happened at the same time.

2. Speaking of specific time in the past

Example.

We were studying English at 10:00 pm.

The action happened at a specific time 10:00 pm.

3. Two actions were in progress at the same time in the past.

Examples

While I was reading, my mother was cooking.

4. Inquires (asking) for something politely.

Example

I was wondering if I could use your bicycle.

N.B

We use when with past continuous tense + simple past.

Whereby we use while with only past continuous.

Examples:

1. I was writing a letter when my father came
2. They were drinking coke while they were playing.

COMPREHENSION

Trouble at Home

Amina's mother is called Mrs. Chambiri. She usually goes to the market every Saturday to buy some things for the home. She leaves her children at home when she goes to the market. While she is away, the children help by doing some of the housework.

One day, Mrs. Chambiri said to the children, "This Saturday, I will be going to the market to buy some things." Then she added, "While I am away, you will have to cook and clean the house."

When Saturday came, she left very early in the morning for the market. She did not want to miss some of the things she needed to buy. When she reached the market, there were so many people buying and selling things. It was not easy to move from one stall to another.

It took a long time but she managed to buy all the things she wanted. She bought some bananas, tomatoes, onions and spices. She also bought some salt and sugar.

While she was walking home, she met an old friend of hers on the road. They sat down in the shade by the roadside and talking about old times. It was a pleasant moment for the two women and they kept on laughing. At the end of it, they exchange phone numbers. When they were saying goodbye to each other, Mrs. Chambiri realized it was already past midday. Both of them hurried home.

When Mrs. Chambiri reached home, she found her son and daughter in the kitchen cooking. While Amina was cooking the sauce, Iddi was cooking the rice. She was very pleased with her children. "You are growing up to be good people," she said.

When time for lunch came, the food was served and the whole family sat at the table to eat. Mrs. Chambiri was the first to put the food in her mouth. As soon as it touched her tongue she made a stranger face. "What is this?" she asked.

The children tasted the food and then remained quiet, staring at each other. The food had sugar in it, instead of salt! No one could tell what had happened.

"You are very careless. You deserve to be punished," their mother said with an angry face. The children were very sorry. They asked their mother and father for forgiveness. However, it was later discovered that the container for salt actually had sugar in it.

"It was my own mistake, children, I am sorry," Mrs. Chambiri said to her children. Amina and Iddi were very happy to have an understanding.

17: EXTENSIVE READING

Reading

Is the cognitive process of decoding symbols to derive meaning.

Extensive reading - involves learners reading texts for enjoyment and to develop general reading skills.

Example

A teacher read a short story with learners, but does not set them any tasks except to read and listen.

COMPREHENSION

1. Read this story

Earlier today there was a lot of noise in the Majuto home because Saada cut herself! She was trying to reach mangoes in a tree when she fell off a chair. Mtagwa came running in.

“Mum! Saada has cut her leg”

“What!” shouted her mum. “Where is she?”

“she’s in the garden and she’s crying!” said Mtagwa.

Her mother hurried outside. Saada was sitting on the ground crying.

“What has happened?” Asked her mother.

“What have you done? Have you hurt yourself?”

“Ow! I was trying to pick a mango but I fell off the chair! Ow! It hurts!”

“You’ve cut your leg. Mtagwa, do and get a bowl of warm water and a clean cloth!”

Hadija came hurrying up.

“What’s Saada done? Is she alright?”

“She’s cut her leg.”

“oh!”

2. Answer these questions in sentences.

- (a) What has Saada done?
- (b) What has she been trying to do?
- (c) Has she hurt herself?
- (d) Who went looking for mum?
- (e) Where was Saada?
- (f) Was she crying?

Using his strength, the buffalo threw Madaha to the ground and began chasing him. Before he could get caught, the monkey climbed up on the tree and started making faces at the buffalo. “You good for nothing fellow. You made a mistake joking with me,” Madaha bragged.

“Okay Mr. Hero, live on that tree forever,” buffalo warned as tears flowed freely on his face.

When the buffalo realized that Madaha wa Majigambo was in no hurry to come down, he left for the river in great pain and still crying.

“Ha! Who is the hero now? Madaha wa Majigambo is the hero of this great forest!”

- a) What lesson did you get from this story?
- b) Describe the character in this story using as many appropriate adjectives as possible.
- c) Tell your friend why you liked or did not like;
 - The store
 - Madaha wa majigambo
 - The buffalo
 - The leopard
 - The vulture.
- d) List down the new words learnt from the story and use them in simple sentences. You can use a dictionary.

Write short notes on the following questions individually:

- (a) What is the title of the story? is it a good title? Why?
- (b) What is the story about?
- (c) Who is your best character? Why?
- (d) Who is your worst character? Why?
- (e) Was the story interesting? Explain.
- (f) What did you like most in the story?
- (g) What did you learn from the story?

1. Madaha wa Majigambo – the Monkey

One day, the buffalo was grazing near a very tall tree. on top of that tree, there was a monkey that had lived there for many years. He only came down when he was thirsty. he liked that tree because it had sweet fruits. He could not let any other animal come near that tree. He believed that the tree was his. The other animals had nicknamed him madaha wa majigambo.

Madaha was a very proud monkey. He had fought many fights in his life. The first had been between him and the greedy vulture. the vulture was on his usual rounds in search of food and left overs. By bad luck, he passed near the tall tree. To Madaha was Majigambo, this was trespass and the greedy vulture had to be punished. Without wasting time Madaha was Majigambo attacked him and hurt him badly.

The second fight had been between Madala wa Majigambo and the furious leopard. This time Madaha was not lucky. He was beaten and he scampered away badly hurt with big open wounds and with a bloody face. He had to rest for three weeks on top of the tree before he could fully recover.

Madaha had fought many fights. Sometimes he was a winner, but other times he lost badly. But he always pretended to be a hero.

“Your big for nothing animal, don’t you know you are trespassing?” shouted Madaha to the buffalo. The buffalo was an arrogant animal. He looked up and asked Madaha, “Who said I am trespassing?”

“I Madaha wa Majigambo. You are at the wrong place!” said the monkey. “IS grazing on grass trespassing?” the buffalo asked angrily.

“Yes, because Madaha wa Majigambo says so,” the proud monkey answered. “I am the king here! Leave right now or I’ll break your jaw!” Madaha warned.

“You are playing with fire and you shall get burned,” the buffalo warned.

“Come down if you think you are a hero!” the buffalo shouted as he went on grazing.

This was the right time for Madaha to attack. He pounced on the buffalo, sat on his back and held his horns. Then he slapped the buffalo on the face and poked his eyes hurting him badly. The buffalo cried and jumped up and down in pain.

Write a short note, inviting your friend to one of the most important events in your life. One day, Mrs. Ali asked the children in Zubeda’s class to write about their friends. This is what Zubeda wrote:

My Best Friend

My best friend is called Zuhura. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bausi. They live at Himo, which is a village near Moshi. Her father is a shopkeeper and her mother is a teacher .

Zuhura is fourteen years old, a year older than I am. She is about one meter and fifty centimeters tall. She is slim, has white teeth and a beautiful smile. Her skin is fair.

Zuhuru goes to Bidii Primary School, like me. She is now in class six. She is good at English, Mathematics and science. She sings sweetly, too.

I chose Zuhura as my friend because she helps me in many ways. We are also friends in need. Sometimes, she lets me borrow her books if I need them. She also likes me because I am good at Social Studies and Arts and Craft. I am good at Home Science, too and I help her with some of the recipes.

Zuhura and I often do things together. We usually walk home together after school. We also play netball on Saturdays.

Now, write about your own best friend in the same way. What you write must be true, so you should use your own words wherever necessary.

Your teacher asked you to talk about your family one afternoon. Everyone talked about his/her parents, brothers and sisters. They introduced their names, their occupations, hobbies and responsibilities in the family. They later concluded by saying why they loved their families more than anything else in the world. Now, write about your own family in the title ‘My Family’.
